

EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS OFFICER

COMPETITION 08/02

The Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada, a national union representing some 55,000 professional and scientific employees in the federal, New Brunswick, Manitoba and Ontario public services requires an Employment Relations Officer for its Vancouver Regional Office.

THE CANDIDATE

As a successful candidate, you are a seasoned labour relations professional with a university degree in a related discipline or an equivalent combination of education and related experience. You have a minimum of five years' experience in the labour relations field, including representing individuals before third parties such as arbitration boards.

THE POSITION

This position reports to the Regional Representative. Knowledge is required of legislation and authorities governing employer/employee relations, as well as the labour relations environment, including familiarity with dispute resolution, human rights, and other labour relations issues. You have worked extensively in a unionized environment and you are able to respond quickly and effectively to any labour relations issue which may arise. You possess strong advocacy skills, effective interpersonal skills and the ability to advise and counsel members on their employment rights. You also have the ability to design and deliver training in an adult environment. There may be a requirement for some travel.

THE SALARY $65,824 to $91,424

THE BENEFITS

The Institute offers a generous benefits package including, but not limited to: a thirty-five hour work week, a monthly car allowance, four weeks' vacation upon commencement of employment, dental, health, vision care and disability plans, a superior pension plan (which permits reciprocal agreements), training and career development opportunities, a yearly wellness gift, as well as the opportunity to participate in a number of affinity programs.
